JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, MONDAY, MAY 11, 1885

NUMBER 55

Over 100,000 bona fide subscribers to General Grant's book have been taken. Of this number, Ohio takes 18,000 and Michigan 12,000.

More than three million Germans have emigrated to the United States during the last sixty years. One million came during the last ten years.

"Offensive partisanship" is the only hope of the democratic waiting office. That seems to apply to any republican who didn't contribute to the election of a democratic president.

The Lawrence university of Appleton, is looking up. By the will of Captain C. N. Pease, a former wealthy Oshkosh lumber dealer, that institution gets $50,000. In addition to this, J. H. Van Dyke, another friend of the university, has given it $20,000.

The democrats asserted times without number before they took charge of the treasury that there was $400,000,000 of a surplus. They have trimmed it down to $23,000,000. Will some democratic paper tell the people what became of the money.

The happy-go-lucky method of the stockman of the west in permitting their cattle to shift for themselves during the winter season has been found too disastrous to continue. The enormous losses of cattle from exposure on the plains during the past winter have resulted in a determination to have a change in the method of herding cattle. Shelter, water, hay and permanent winter quarters are to be provided by some of the more prudent stockmen, and next winter will see a system of fencing in reserved pastures and the abandonment of nomadic pasturage.

The following table on the lumber trade, furnished by a Minneapolis paper, shows the log supply on the four principal logging streams of Wisconsin and Minnesota, this spring, with the reduction accomplished by the policy curtailing adopted by the loggers last fall:

District.	1884.	1885.	Decrease.
Minnesota.	323,000,000	311,000,000	12,000,000
Wisconsin.	49,000,000	45,000,000	4,000,000
Chippewa.	17,000,000	15,000,000	2,000,000
Itasca.	25,000,000	23,000,000	2,000,000
Duluth.	20,000,000	18,000,000	2,000,000
Total.	392,000,000	379,000,000	13,000,000

There is a large surplus from last year, and the supply is about equal to the sawing capacities of the mills.

A very novel question is now before the supreme court of Kansas. In substance, the case is this: A jury in a criminal case had retired to deliberate on a verdict, when one of the twelve, a man of deep religious convictions, suggested that the proceedings in the jury room be opened with prayer. There was no objection raised, and the man made a fervent appeal to the throne of grace. The verdict was against the defendant, whereupon his lawyer moved to set it aside on the ground of "undue influence exercised by one of the jurymen by means of public prayer in the jury room." In his elaborate brief on the point the counsel admits that there can be no legal objection to a private petition to the throne of grace earnestly offered by a conscientious juror with the motive of freeing his own mind from prejudice and passion. But "a public prayer in such a place" presents a different case, since "one long practiced in the wielding of this subtle influence can play upon the feelings and judgment of his weaker brother. And the more gifted in prayer the leader is, the more powerful will be his influence." It seems to be the only case of the kind on record. It is thought that the supreme court will reverse the case and order a new trial.

With the single exception, probably, of Boutwell's Abridgments, no book was ever written under more trying circumstances and surroundings than the memoirs by General Grant, now nearing completion. The entire ground has been covered from Point Pleasant to Appomattox, and it will doubtless be the most valuable history of the rebellion which has been written. As an encouragement to the suffering old hero, and to show that his work is appreciated, subscribers all over the country are sending in their names direct to the general for his work who completed. The Commercial Gazette says: "In a few hours in Cincinnati 100 subscribers for the volume were received and the names forwarded to him in New York." Like Sherman's Memoirs, it will be a standard history of the war.

The Gazette having published the statement of Dr. Buckley, editor of the New York Christian Advocate, that the increase in membership of the Methodist Episcopal church during the past few months had been 40,000, a subscriber calls our attention to a later article from Dr. Buckley on the same subject, in which he says: "The statement made by us that there have been at least 40,000 conversions in the Methodist Episcopal church during the past few months, was not large enough. We now think it would be nearer the truth if we should say 100,000. More extraordinary and widespread revivals have occurred during the past winter than at any time during the last ten years. The presiding elder of the Gallop district of the Ohio conference, obtaining his figures from the presiding elders of the conference, represents that in that conference alone there have been 10,200 conversions; and in the West Virginia conference the secretary informs us that there have been upward of 5,000. So that in two conferences there have been more than 15,000."

A LOSS OF TWO CENTS.
The republican party of the nation must certainly feel exalted over the result of the counting of the cash in the United States treasury by the democrats. During the past dozen years or more, and especially during the last campaign, the democratic ory was that millions had been stolen from the treasury. When all this clamor was being made again, the republican management of the books and the democratic promise of the country that if Cleveland was elected, there would be a thorough examination of the books and a correct counting of the cash. Well, Cleveland was elected, and when Manning was appointed secretary of the treasury his first step was to get some of the best experts in the country to overhaul the treasury books, in order to know whether there was any mischief concealed, and exactly what amount of money the treasury ought to have on hand.

The result must be humiliating to the democrats. These experts worked for days on the books. Trained accountants overhauled them from 1831 to the present time, and when they finish their task they find that the cash actually held by the government agrees precisely, both in amount and in kind, with the treasury books, excepting two cents!

Our readers will readily remember that Mr. Hendricks, time after time last fall, said the election of a democrat to the presidency would "let the light of heaven into these vaults," and then, "there will be horrible things revealed." The "unusually concealed vastness," he said would be made known to the denizens of the republican party. The "light of heaven," so-called by the democrats, entered the vault. Trained experts were set to work on the books. All the counting of cash was done under the sharp eye of democratic officials who were long to find some republican corruption, and the result makes him of all the democratic leaders in all the hundreds of millions counted, there is missing only two cents!

When the republicans took possession of the treasury twenty-four years ago, there was a different state of affairs. The treasury had been robbed by democratic officials, but it is a thing of which the republican party can feel proud, that after all the "changes and excitements," its corruption and the temptation of the tremendous financial struggle of the civil war, and the issue of new kinds of currency in vast amounts, the result proves that the accountants have been absolutely correct; and the guardianship of the public money absolutely faithful!

IS CHOLERA CONTAGIOUS?

Ever since cholera has worked its deadly ravage—buffing the skill of the best physicians and spreading terror and death with a more ruthless hand than any other plague of modern times—the question of its origin has been widely discussed. The medical world has been divided on the subject, and well it may be, for at times the disease seems to have given positive evidence of its contagious character, while at other times the circumstance seemed to prove quite the contrary. The recent discovery by Dr. Forra of inoculation against cholera, did look as if the discovery had definitely settled the question.

But on the other hand comes Dr. Marx Pettenkofer, of Munich, with an opinion a little in advance of the alleged Spanish discovery. This well known German scientist has given something more than thirty years to the study of cholera, personally and by research, and in recent lectures on the subject, offered to dispute the theory of contagion, citing a great number of instances to prove that infection by contact is not more the rule than infection where there is no contact.

In discussing the question in the public journals of Germany, he noted what some under his personal observation, "the remarkable immunity nurses and physicians in close attendance upon patients at a time when the population without the hospital, and apparently secluded from contagion, was seized by the disease and ravaged." He is also positive on another point, that there is not a serious agent in transmitting the disease, and his explanation is that "the spread of cholera is not due to contagion, but by taking into the system a cholera bacillus, which may be done by inhalation, by getting into the mouth or eyes, or by any means that will give it entrance to the intestines."

When speaking about quarantine Dr. Pettenkofer says: "If we ask ourselves what good has resulted from sanitary conditions, inspection, and quarantine, we are bound to answer none. All these measures have failed because they simply treat the individual, the possible case of cholera." But the supreme point in the doctor's discussion of the question, is this, and everybody, especially city authorities, should ponder well his words: "Everything which tends to lower the general health and cause depression, and especially those conditions which induce diarrhea, predisposes to cholera. To these matters every one must look for himself, and his own efforts may be aided by the advice of doctors. The organs of public health may also effect much. But the difficult point in the prevention of cholera is the predisposition in time and place. It is no use urging, as the contagionists do, that we can not change the nature of the soil. One of the established facts concerning epidemics of cholera is the tendency of the disease to rage in those quarters where the greatest filth prevails. All towns which have been provided with good drainage and water-supply have lost their susceptibility to cholera."

THE GRAND ARMY.

The Relief Fund and Its Use By the Post.

Arrangements for The Grand Encampment this week.

HEADQUARTERS W. H. SARGENT POST No. 20, G. A. R., JANSVILLE, Wis., May 8, 1885.

As per announcement already made in this paper, W. H. Sargent Post, No. 20, G. A. R., will give an entertainment on the evening of the 14th, 15th and 16th inst., for the benefit of the relief fund of the Post.

While the members have expended much time and money in preparing for the entertainment, not one dollar of the proceeds can be returned to the general treasury of the Post, or used for any other purpose than, as the name implies, for the relief of needy soldiers and sailors, and their widows and orphans.

Post No. 20 has expended a large amount of money for relief during the hard and long winter that has just passed, and the treasury is nearly depleted. It is to replenish this that the entertainment is given and the patronage of the people of Janesville is asked.

Confidence is felt by the Post, that their appeal will not be in vain, for every call heretofore made by them has met with a hearty response from the people of the town and surrounding country. They also feel confident that they can give to all who favor them with their presence the full value of their money and that the time given them will not be lost, for the entertainment is intended to equal in interest any given in the city this season.

The necessity for, and drawn upon the relief fund of the Post is becoming greater year by year, for the reason that many of the soldiers of the late war enlisted in youth or early manhood, just at the time when under ordinary circumstances they would be learning trades or business; on the expiration of their terms of service they had passed the time of life usually devoted to the learning of such trades or occupations as require years of apprenticeship or study; so entered upon the duties and assumed the responsibilities of manhood but poorly equipped. As a result their incomes have been but small, barely sufficient to meet the demands made upon them when in health and in prosperous times; but when sickness comes or time, of financial depression, they must, unaided, fall into areas; another reason why larger demands on the relief fund will be made in the future, than in the past, is, very few soldiers or sailors who served one or more years, came home with sound, unimpaired constitutions; and the infirmities of old age have come upon them, in what should be, the prime of life.

These men do not wish to call upon the authorities for aid and be classed as paupers nor is it right they should. A little assistance, now and then, perhaps not more than once or twice in the winter, to help them through a tight place, is all they require, and more than they ask; for it is only very rarely that one appeal is made for aid by the needy one himself, but by some command, who discovers the destitution, perhaps by accident and reports the case to the Post; nor is the benevolence of the G. A. R. limited to the members of the order, but is extended to all soldiers and sailors who served the Union during the rebellion, and to all widows and orphans of such soldiers and sailors.

The G. A. R. has, during the last five years, distributed more money or its equivalent among the needy and deserving poor, carried more comfort and consolation to the stricken and desolate, and received more true, heartfelt thanks, than all other benevolent associations in the United States taken together.

We are often asked—what is the object of your order? The talmianic letter of our order are "F. O. C. and L."—Fraternity towards all who offered themselves a sacrifice on our country's altar in the dark days of her peril, who placed themselves a living bulwark between the life of the nation and those who sought to take it, who pledged their life, their treasure and their sacred honor to the preservation of the union one and indissoluble. Charity in the broadest meaning of the term; charity in giving, charity in receiving, charity for those who differ from us, charity for those who err, covering all faults and follies save treason, with the broad mantle of charity, knowing that we have need that the great heart of charity should beat loudly with us.

Loyalty to the land that bore us, and is ours, and whose sons (not servants) we are; loyalty to the government that protects us, and the flag that flutters over us.

And now, deep-rooted in the heart of every true son of the Grand Army of the Republic, remaineth these three, Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty.

Yours, in F. O. C. and L.

New York, May 11.—Gen. Grant slept fully seven hours last night, and when the four doctors of the staff met in consultation Sunday afternoon they found his general condition was, if anything, improved, but the cancerous spots were unchanged.

Dr. Barker said for Europe this week, and this was his last consultation before going. When about to leave he bade the general good-bye and said:

"When I come back in the autumn I shall expect to find your literary work finished to your satisfaction."

"You don't expect to find me, though, do you?"

"I shall hope so, anyhow," responded Dr. Barker to be waded away.

Dr. Strady said that the new cancer spots had not perceptibly increased since Wednesday. Gen. Grant added a block to his usual walk Sunday afternoon, and stated that he felt no more fatigue than usual.

The G. A. R. has, during the last five years, distributed more money or its equivalent among the needy and deserving poor, carried more comfort and consolation to the stricken and desolate, and received more true, heartfelt thanks, than all other benevolent associations in the United States taken together.

We are often asked—what is the object of your order? The talmianic letter of our order are "F. O. C. and L."—Fraternity towards all who offered themselves a sacrifice on our country's altar in the dark days of her peril, who placed themselves a living bulwark between the life of the nation and those who sought to take it, who pledged their life, their treasure and their sacred honor to the preservation of the union one and indissoluble. Charity in the broadest meaning of the term; charity in giving, charity in receiving, charity for those who differ from us, charity for those who err, covering all faults and follies save treason, with the broad mantle of charity, knowing that we have need that the great heart of charity should beat loudly with us.

Loyalty to the land that bore us, and is ours, and whose sons (not servants) we are; loyalty to the government that protects us, and the flag that flutters over us.

And now, deep-rooted in the heart of every true son of the Grand Army of the Republic, remaineth these three, Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty.

Yours, in F. O. C. and L.

Gen. Grant Takes a Longer Walk.

New York, May 11.—Gen. Grant slept fully seven hours last night, and when the four doctors of the staff met in consultation Sunday afternoon they found his general condition was, if anything, improved, but the cancerous spots were unchanged.

Dr. Barker said for Europe this week, and this was his last consultation before going. When about to leave he bade the general good-bye and said:

"When I come back in the autumn I shall expect to find your literary work finished to your satisfaction."

"You don't expect to find me, though, do you?"

"I shall hope so, anyhow," responded Dr. Barker to be waded away.

Dr. Strady said that the new cancer spots had not perceptibly increased since Wednesday. Gen. Grant added a block to his usual walk Sunday afternoon, and stated that he felt no more fatigue than usual.

A Good Man Gone to Beloit.

The Pomeroy house for the past three years, has been successfully conducted under the management of Mr. J. Snyder.

This gentleman has gathered about him a host of friends, who will regret to learn that the attractions of the State Line city have so influenced him as to take him bodily out of town and plant him among the sands of the roaring Rock in the village of Beloit. There are several men in Janesville that our neighboring city down the river might have had for the asking, but when they call on us for one of our best landlords the case is quite different.

Mr. Snyder will open the new hotel in the Carpenter block about the middle of June. He will win success and the Do-
